THE REQUEST PREFERRED.

The Hon, William A. Anderson, of Rock bridge, yesterday waited upon Chairman Ellyson and laid before him a formal request that the State Democratic Committee might be convened to consider memorial setting forth the action of the May meeting. The chairman later in the day informed Mr. Anderson that he would | rious? call a meeting of the committee upon a date to be fixed hereafter. If our State Committee should agree to would be asked "to consider matters of party interest relating to the nomination and election of United States senators," or words to that effect.

We know, as well as any of our contemporaries who have jogged us on the subject, that it is not for the State Committee to indicate a policy for a State convention to pursue; but it would be proper for the committee to specify the reason for convening it.

Once assembled, the State convention would have the reins entirely in its own hands. It could nominate or not, as it pleased, or it might order a State primary, or it might dismiss the whole subject without any action at all.

The Dispatch has never for one moment contended that it was in the power of any other body than a State convention to adopt a policy for our party. We have time and again declared that the

The resolutions adopted by the May conference were by no means as accurately phrased as they might have been; but we may be sure it was never intended to ask the State Committee to ing negro community is utterly impracti-Go anything it has no right to do. When the State Committee is asked to "provide" a State convention for the nomination of a senator, all that is meant is to move the State Committee to initiate such mea- beyond the influence of white civilization. sures as would be proper to secure that

If, in the opinion of the State Committee, the interests of our party require that a State convention shall be convened to consider matters pertaining to the nomination and election of senators, we think there is nothing in the record of the Roanoke Convention forbidding it to do so. The Roanoke Convention decided but two things-namely: (1) That a State convention, whether called for such a purpose or not, may, if it chooses to do so, commit our party absolutely and unre servedly to the support of a candidate for the Senate, and (2) that it was not in favor of nominating a candidate for the Senate in 1899 by a State primary elec-

It would have been absurd for the Roanoke Convention, after having chosen a candidate for the Senate, to proclaim it hostility to that method of selection, and it did nothing of the kind. Think of the ridicule it would have brought upon itself if it had made any such declaration! And yet several of our exchanges are persistent in the view that the Roanoke convention discountenanced every method of nomination, save only that one which had theretofore prevailed in Virginia. Oh, no! Action speaks louder than words, and by its action the Roanoke Convention disapproved the Stateprimary-election scheme in one case and in another approved a nomination by a convention.

We shall not undertake to foreshadow the action of the State Committee upon the questions to be brought before it. We doubt if any man is qualified to do so at this time. Much may depend upon circumstances. We take it for granted, however, that the memorialists will present their case in good temper and spirit; that these who will oppose their requests will be equally as considerate, and that the conclusions of the committee will be rendered with that judicial calm ness characteristic of it. Then, no matter what may be the issue of the controversy before the committee, its judgment will be cheerfully accepted.

MISSISSIPPI PRIMARY. The Legislature of Mississippi to be ratic, and in view of the movement in Virginia looking to the election of United states senators by the direct vote of the people, or until that can be accomplished, the nelection of party senatorial andidates by some popular method, it is interesting to note that both of the Misissippi senators will be practically nominated and elected by the Democratic vote of that State, through a system of "homerule" primaries. Up to date, thirty-eight counties have ordered primaries to express their preferences for United States senators and to instruct their representatives in the Legislature to vote their choice. These thirty-eight counties make a total of ninety votes on joint ballot in the Legislature, which is just exactly a masix other counties have called mass-meetings at which the question of holding primaries to instruct will be considered, and it is regarded as almost certain that primaries will be ordered. It is believed, indeed, that there will be at least 120 in-out of a total vote of 189 on joint ballot. The New York Times cannot take the same reseate view that its contemporary, he Herald, does, of the scheme to establish a negro town on Long Island. Briefly the proposed refuge for negroes, from couthern barbarism" is this: The inhabitants of the town are to be carefullyfamily and each unattached colonist must possess a capital of $75 on which to be gin the new life. No white person will Card of rates for more space furnished be allowed to own real estate in the new city, but employment is to be provided by factories erected and operated by the money of some unnamed white capitalists.

structed members in the next Legislature,

The Herald, as was shown in a paragraph from an editorial in that paper printed in yesterday's Dispatch, is much aken with the idea of a negro community 'flocking alone," and which will "show the whites that when fair play is accorded to the negro he can take care of himself without any assistance." But the Times, while wishing the scheme sucess, thinks it is Utopian, and feels constrained to throw cold water on it. As compared with attempts to colonize American negroes in Africa, the idea, remarks the Times, has merits. That, howver, it adds, is all that can be said for . Then our doubting contemporary propounds this pertinent question; What need have negroes of the kind described to emigrate from States where the congion in which their presence will be a disturbing and, therefore, unwelcome factor, and where the demand for their labor, for a long time at least, will be entirely artificial, and, therefore, highly preca-

Next, the Times suggests that it is so easy to plan a model town on communistic principles that perhaps the promoters call a State convention, we suppose the of the Long Island scheme have underescall would set forth that the convention timated the difficulty in the way of finding model negroes. Models, it continues, are not numerous in any race, and black men and women of the kind wanted are not the opes that will be most eager to conclusion, the Times expresses doubt whether the negro race has yet advanced to a point where segregation would be good for it, or even endurable, recognizes the fact that all over the United States the negroes have the least trouble where emphasize atavistic traits, which traits where more strikingly and beautifully itare in the negro the reverse of admirable. Evidently there is some one on the the character and proclivities of the negro, and his environments at the South, than is the writer of the article in the State Committee is without legislative Herald. The difference between the viewpoints of the two writers is the difference between the practical and the sentimental. There is not a reason given by the Times man as making against the scheme that is not sound. > The Lexington Gazette, in reviewing the proceedings of the May conference, says: There was the least possible amount of he "cut and dried" about the proceedings. The conference would not have it. There was nothing "set" in what was done. Contests were warm and earnest. There was a common object in view, but a diver-sity of opinion as to the best method by which it was to be attained. The spon-taneity of the proceedings was not the least striking feature of the conference most markedly manifest. It showed itsel in the speeches. It was seen in the active part which men from every section of the State took in the debates. It was most strikingly evident in the close attention paid to every detail of the pro-ceedings. The enthusiasm was warm and

Our contemporary most accurately describes the spirit of the gathering.

John W. Jorgenson, the crank who was recently arrested in Chicago for clipping the hair of young girls with scissors, attempted to commit suicide a few days ago. He used a small pistol and the ball penetrated the region near his heart. At the time of his effort at self-destruc tion, "the Clipper" was out on bail awaiting the decision of the court in his case. It is supposed that the uncertainty as to his fate produced melancholia., The doctors do not believe that the wound he inflicted will prove fatal. Jorgenson has relieved many young ladies of their hair, and the sentiment in Chicago has been strong against him.

The Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale has resigned the pastorate of the South Congregational (Unitarian) church, Boston, after a service of forty-three years. In his letter of resignation, it appears, Dr. Hale said he had begun to realize that the church needed a man who could serve as minister as well as preacher. The resignation was unexpected, however, and the church took no action. It is said to be fikely it will offer to secure an assistant for Dr. Hale, if he will withdraw his resignation.

The fluid of the glands of the William goat has been selected to do what it was claimed the Ponce de Leon spring would do, could it have been found, and that is, States senators-one for the long or full renew youth. The little pamphlet of Rev. Dr. Ro-bert C. Campbell on the negro problem, which was reviewed in the Dispatch some weeks ago and which embraces the substance of a sermon delivered by him last Christmas, is attracting unusual attention from thoughtful persons at the North Dr. Campbell's treatment of the subject was liable to challenge earnest consideration under any conditions, but just now the pamphlet is being given exceptional prominence in connection with the dis-cussion of "some recent lynchings in the South.' The Springfield (Mass.) Republican dis-bell's views and array of facts in an article of more than a column. It is evident that our contemporary has thoroughly digested the contents of the pamphlet. And as a consequence, it makes some most remarkable admissions for a paper of the Republican's environments. Dr. Campbell speaks of the comparative indifference to the negroes shown by the present generation of whites at the South. He draws a strong contrast between the feeling the old-time southerner entertained towards the negro and the feeling the average southerner of to-day has for him. He also notes that the indifference referred to has been a thing of steady growth since the civil war. The point. Indifference, it adds, was sure to rise, to some extent, out of forcible emancipation, the elevation of the black race to immediate citizenship and the creation of the color line in politics. But ontinues our contemporary, the indifference was intensified by the vicious carpet-bagism of reconstruction days, the meddling of northern political adventurers, and the attempt to build up a political party in the South among the ing them in hostility to their former masters. In other words, the Republican admits that the Republican party is responsible for an indifference that is perfectly natural, and which has prevented the whites of the South from continuing to exercise a moral restraint over the negro. And consequently it also admits that the Republican party is responsible for practically all of the lynchings of negroes that have occurred at the South.

However, the Republican does not stop here. It goes on to concede that Dr. in any consideration of the negro problem upon the re-establishment of the old friendly and interested relations between whites and blacks that existed under Exactly. This bears out the contention the South has been advancing ever since the negroes as represented by the white Republican leaders at the South. The Republican argues itself to the conclusion reached by the best friends of the negro at the South years ago.
